Devkund waterfall trek is 175 kilometers from Mumbai, 115 kilometers from Pune, and 90 kilometers from Lonavala. Bhira, Patnus village in Raigad district, is the base village for the jungle waterfall trek in Maharashtra. Due to bad roads and heavy traffic, it will take 6 hours from Mumbai and 4 hours from Pune. You can take the Mumbai - Pune expressway and follow the Imagica to Pali to Devkund waterfall route.

Devkund waterfall trek is perfect for one day trek. The Falls, an amalgamation of three waterfalls, are regularly voted as the best jungle waterfall trek in India. You can dip your tired feet in the relaxing turquoise water and visit the Devkund Waterfall located near Bhira Village. Devkund Waterfall is one of the most beautiful waterfalls in India. Devkund Waterfall Trek is a mostly unknown and unexplored waterfall in Maharashtra.

There are very few perennial waterfalls in Maharashtra, like Devkund Waterfall. The forest around the waterfall is beautifully green and dense, with many species of animals and birds. Devkund keeps the spirit of the monsoon alive. Your trek will lead you through many unexplored trails; navigating slippery rocks will contain medium to easy obstacles. Once you reach Devkund Waterfall, you will be overwhelmed by its beauty and joy.

The white water cascaded down a series of rocky outcrops, giving the effect of many waterfalls rather than just one. Then it flowed on its way, nonchalant as if nothing had happened, enjoy the fish spa, and rejuvenate. The plunge waterfall changes colors depending on the time of the day, creating a magical and picture-perfect scene.

During the rainy season, the plunge waterfall, the origin of the Kundalika River, is fed by the Tamhini ghat, and the waterfall flow will be fierce. Be ready with waterproof cameras to capture the best moments of the monsoon waterfalls trek near Mumbai.

Devkund waterfall, also known as the "Bathing Pond of Gods," is a mystical waterfall with great mythological significance and is regarded as sacred by the villagers. It offers a natural pool for visitors to experience its pristine waters and indulge in a natural therapy session. The trek takes approximately three to four hours, covering a distance of six kilometers one way. The route, with its few perennial waterfalls, rocky outcrops, and lush jungle, presents a joyous and adventurous journey. The Devkund waterfall trek is a must-visit paradise for adventure enthusiasts, providing a fairy tale-like escape from the bustling city life.

In the last section, we start gaining height after crossing the wooden bridge. We will walk across thick foliage and reach the boulder section. Here we need to hike with care as this area is slippery with many waterfalls, and the roar of gushing Devkund Falls makes hearing difficult.

Now you will ultimately reach the goal; you can witness the magic of Devkund Waterfalls' white water cascading down from altitudes of 85 meters which has carved a natural pool of roughly 30 meters in diameter. The entire atmosphere is so scared, pristine, and delightful.

Devkund Waterfall Tamhini Ghat's major landmark is the hydroelectric power plant of Bhira Dam, owned by Tata Power Company Ltd in 1927. It is also known as the Mulshi Dam or Tata power Dam near the Bhira village source of the Kolad River rafting Rawalje or Kundalika River. ATM and Petrol pump are available before the town. Ample parking is available in the village, and parking fees are applicable.

Every year many people drown while picnicking at the waterfalls around Maharashtra. In the past, many tourists have drowned at the Devkund waterfall. Most incidents have taken place when people have broken the rules made by locals to avoid any accidents.

Follow these rules to avoid facing any accidents or deaths and for a safe Devkund Waterfall Trek.

1. Tourists should avoid crossing the second stream on a rainy day as the waterfall currents and flow is powerful; there is a wooden bridge available please use it. Wait for your turn to cross the bridge. The waterfall will be crowded on the weekend.
2. Avoid swimming in the pool below the waterfall. Although the pool below the waterfall is attractive, it has powerful undercurrents and is very deep more than 40 feet. Many tourists have lost their lives trying to swim in the pool.
3. Avoid visiting the waterfalls after getting drunk; the area around the waterfall is extremely slippery with huge boulders. Many tourists have broken bones here and required rescue.

4. Avoid visiting the waterfalls on the weekend expect 2000 to 3000 tourists to be present on the weekend during the rainy season. More the crowds, the more the chances of accidents.
5. Start your trek early during the day, and it usually rains more during the second half of the day.
6. The locals have placed a large rope as a boundary marking for a safe zone. Please don't rely on it too much as it can shift due to water currents, winds, and crowds using its support to stand in the pool below. Stay a few feet away from the rope for your safety. Also, swimming ahead of the rope is prohibited, and tourists will be fined.

8. Best time to visit Devkund Waterfall?

Devkund Waterfall Trekking searching for that classic waterfall concealed inside the wilderness, which is hidden to the world. The best time to visit Devkund waterfalls is during the rainy season and post-monsoon season till January. beautiful scenes. Devkund Waterfall Location trailhead is Patnus village.

9. What is the difficulty level of the Devkund Waterfall Trek route?

The trek is a medium grade with an easy flat walk for almost 70 percent of the hike, and the last 30 percent is uphill through dense forest and boulders. The first 70 percent of the trek, the beautiful Bhira Dam, Andharban Trek Trail, and Khajina Waterfall, will be to your left. Villagers run a few small Dhabas along the way. They offer Maggi, Nimbu Paani, and Poha. These Dhabas are mostly operational during the rainy season and on weekends. There are two major stream crossings. You will find villagers on rainy days here with ropes attached for support during the crossing. The second stream crossing can be dangerous if rainfall increases. There is a wooden bridge constructed by an enterprising villager who charges Rs 20 for crossing the bridge. We highly recommend using the bridge.

The last 30 percent of the trail is uphill, and first-timers can take small breaks while completing this section. The route is well marked, with red ribbons tied along small tree branches acting as a guide. Please carry mosquito repellent as the entire route will have wild mosquitoes. The last section is primarily boulders. Your ears can now guide you to the roaring waterfalls.

Pro Tip: 1. Carry enough water and Food for this trek as the small Dhabas usually run out of food due to huge crowds on the weekend.

2. There is a small fee of Rs 50 payable per head to local villagers who manage the trail and stream crossing take a guide from them it helps during the trek.

18. How safe is the Devkund Waterfall Trek?

Devkund waterfall trek route is safe and well-maintained by local villagers. They have built a bridge at a critical river crossing. They are also present at most places to assist tourists. Our experienced guides and locals combine to create a safety bubble. If you follow their instructions, you don't need to worry about this trek.

We can divide safety at the Waterfall into four parts.

1. Weather conditions: On a heavy rainfall day, the trek will be difficult and risky; following the trek leader's guidance and rules is of the utmost importance, especially near the second waterfall crossing and the waterfall area. The sound of the Waterfall can be loud, and passing instructions complex, so please stay near the trek leaders and follow their instructions for your safety. The vast crowds also make it challenging. Kindly cooperate with your trek guides.

2. Wearing proper trekking gear: For the best trek experience, please wear proper trekking shoes. They offer good grip over wet and slippery surfaces, and full selves clothes to avoid mosquito bites. Would you mind carrying two to three liters of drinking water and snacks for energy?
3. Avoid swimming and Diving: Although the pool below the Waterfall looks inviting and draws thousands of visitors daily. We request you to avoid swimming or diving in the pool. It has solid undercurrents and will pull you down into the deep end. Many people have lost their lives due to the same reason.
4. Alcohol and Drugs: Plus, avoid drinking or smoking during any treks in Maharashtra. Many people get intoxicated and reach the Waterfall. They are constantly screaming and trying many stunts, swimming in the pool, diving into the deep end, and many end up drowning. Plus, the route has many boulders, a stream crossing, and a dense jungle filled with snakes. Intoxicated people create many anti-social issues leading to the ban of the Waterfall for many months

19. What is the Devkund waterfall location?

Devkund Bhira waterfall is a famous waterfall located near Patnus village, Bhira town in Raigad, India. It's a leap waterfall draining water from above as the energy of the falling water strikes against the rocky surface below. Bhira Devkund Falls trek is visited frequently for day trips by tourists and other visitors.
